We offer this rare antique Japanese Hirado porcelain netsuke modelled as the Clams Dream and dating from the Meiji period 1868 to 1912. The white porcelain shell is modelled partially open with a moulded gateway opening between the shells to the front through which a number of very small figures can be viewed inside the body of the shell. The outside of the shell has been over painted with a simple landscape scene and two cord holes have been formed in the base. The netsuke is typically not marked.
